Up to 1 year	Increased risks can be associated with the recording of live lessons where pupil audio and video are engaged. Before making your decision to record the live lesson you must carefully think through these risks and satisfy yourself that this is the most appropriate action to take. In doing so, you must consider the following: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Is there another less intrusive way in which you can fulfill your safeguarding/provision of high standards of teaching obligations? If so you MUST adopt these other approaches.</li> <li>2. Clearly determine that the recording is absolutely NECESSARY for safeguarding and/ or the provision of high standards in teaching.</li> <li>3. You are not recording the lesson for any other purpose.</li> <li>4. The recording is safely and securely saved to either onedrive or Sharepoint and no unauthorised access is permitted.</li> <li>5. The recording can only be shared with pupils from the lesson class and no other third party and only where there are no safeguarding concerns and the sharing is to support high standards of teaching. Where there is a safeguarding matter, the recording must only be shared with authorised personnel and for the purpose of addressing the safeguarding matter</li> <li>6. Recorded lessons can be subject to a Data Subject Access Request, therefore you must be able to protect the rights of all other data subjects (participants) who feature in the recording (i.e. deletion, redaction, blurring etc).</li> <li>7. Consider whether it is essential that the full lesson is recorded to fulfil your purpose or whether you can in fact record only parts of the lesson or take screen shots etc.</li> <li>8. Recordings should be kept for no longer than 12 months unless they're subject to an ongoing safeguarding investigation. Consideration should be given to whether in fact you need to retain the lesson for as long as 12 months, if not then securely delete it at the earliest opportunity.</li> </ol>
